

To our AMAZING Year 6s,

Over the past few months we have been working really hard together, to make sure that you are ready for your KS2 SATs next week and we are soooooo proud of each and every one of you.

We have been completing lots of English and Maths activities at school, but there is something that we would like you all to remember: you have lots of other skills too, ones that the SATs do not test. The SATs tests are important, however they do not assess all of your wonderful skills and talents that make each one of you individual, special and unique. They do not 'measure' the wonderful children that you are.

The big things - the most important things - are things like your personality, what you believe in and think, your ideas, and that special spark inside you that makes you, you! Your parents know it and, as your teachers, we see it every day too.

Some of you might be talented footballers or dancers, be fantastic at designing and making Lego creations or be a wonderful cook. SATs are never going to show off all these amazing skills. Although subjects like Maths and English are obviously important, we want to remind you to never forget about all your other talents - you all have so many!

The outcomes you will get from these tests will tell you something, but they will not tell you everything. There are many ways of being smart - you don't need the SATs to tell you that. So, while you are preparing for the tests, remember that there is no way to 'test' all of the amazing and awesome things that make you unique!

Don't get stressed, just do your best - that's all anyone can ever ask of you.

Have a stress-free weekend, relax and laugh with your family and friends, enjoy yourselves and remember - we are so proud of you all.

Love from

Mrs T, Mr B, Mrs Cavanagh, Mr Dunning and Mrs Woods
